Description

As one of the leading developers of GPS tracking and fleet management software solutions, GPSWOX software was developed in 2014 by a team of professional hardware and software engineers. The company was founded by the current CEO Martynas Kavaliauskas. GPSWOX has already positioned itself among many of the world's leading GPS tracking software firms and is already linked to the distribution of GPS trackers for many of the industry's top brands.

Their international support centre consists of a world-class research and development team as well as a customer service and technical support group for the European, African, Asian, Australian and US markets. GPSWOX headquarters is located in London, UK.

GPSWOX offers a wide array of B2C tracking and B2B tracking and fleet management uses as well as professional white label software services. Our tracking software is compatible with over 300 trackers' brands, has powerful features and a modern interface with the lowest prices on the market.
